[illegible] In company with a friend your correspondent presented himself inquiring of an orderly in the hall if the General was in. Receiving an affirmative reply our cards were sent up. In a few moments we were requested to walk up stairs to the General's office.

His office is a front room on the second floor about sixteen feet by eighteen. It is carpeted with an ingrain carpet of bright cheerful colors giving the room the air of a parlor rather than that of a business office. There are two windows in front and one at one side. By the side window is a low desk for a member of his staff. Near it is a table about six feet long covered with piles and bundles of official documents all tied with the inevitable red tape. Grant's desk—a common office desk—is between the front windows. A frame covered with suspended maps and a half dozen chairs complete the furniture.

When we entered the General was out. In a moment he entered by a side door. No one could fail to recognize him instantly. The likenesses in soldiers everywhere are very like indeed. They do not flatter as is usually the case neither do they make him younger than he really appears. The pictures we see of Johnson are not like him, he is much older, more wrinkled and care worn than they represent him. Not so however with Grant. The pictures of the shops, the parlors and cabins are strikingly true representations of the man.

Grant's countenance is pale and has an expression of sadness. He has a noticeable stoop of the shoulders, and walks with a shuffling gait. He looks like a man burdened with care and anxiety, and as if it was by a strong effort of the will that he was bearing up against it, determined that he would not yield to it or be affected by it.

He was dressed in a plain suit of black with nothing whatever about his person or office to indicate his rank.

After a cordial greeting, he offered us seats and in a very easy, familiar way entered into conversation. In a few moments Senator [illegible] was announced, with Judge [illegible] of Louisiana.

General," said the Senator, "Judge [illegible] wished to see you a few moments and consult with you in regard to the improvement of the levees of the lower Mississippi. We wish the United States government to endorse, and thus guarantee the bonds of the State of Louisiana for the restoration and improvement of the levees."

"I hope the government will not do it," the General replied with a quick positive utterance that was not only decisive and final on that subject but almost stunning.

But General, urged the Senator, "we only wish the United States to indorse the bonds, so that we can sell them without a ruinous discount, giving the United States ample security for the entire amount, so that it would be impossible for the government to lose a cent in any emergency."

Again Grant quickly interrupted: "I never knew a government to become responsible for any amount that it did not ultimately have to pay. You now want the indorsement of the bonds. If that is given, you will soon want to legislate for the payment of the bonds."

"General," said the Senator, "you are too hard on us."

"While we are discussing on all sides," said the General, "how the national debt is to be paid, I shall surely oppose any increase of the national obligations."

"It is impossible to cultivate our lands," interposed the Senator. "The levees are absolutely necessary."

"I know all about the levees," he answered, "I served in that country when a young man, and I had something to do myself, with the breaking of those levees."

But, said the Judge, "millions of acres of the very best land in the world are subject to an overflow."

"Let them overflow, and let them stay under water," said Grant, "until their owners are willing that Northern men and Northern capital should come in and protect and improve them. Northern men with ample capital are ready to make a garden of your State, and you won't let them do it. Your large landholders are as hostile to the United States government to-day as they have ever been, and if that government should rebuild their levees it would not change them a particle. I know no way the government could have adopted for rebuilding the levees but to have confiscated the lands of those engaged in rebellion and used the proceeds to restore the country. As that was not done nothing remains but to set your negroes to work and invite in and welcome Northern men."

"General," said the Judge, "the negroes won't work."

"Won't work," Grant quietly replied, "they'll work if you'll pay them for it."

"Am I not right?" he added. "Is there not such a hostility to Northern men that it amounts in most sections of the State to a practical exclusion of them from the agricultural interests of the country? Is there not an unwillingness to di[illegible] [illegible] the lands and sell them in small parcels to [illegible] who might immigrate, and is there [illegible] [illegible] to secure the services of the ne[illegible] without prompt and adequate compensa[illegible]"

"I must say," said the Judge, "that there is more or less of truth in all these points."

"Then," said Grant, "I think you will have to build your own levees, or wait under water until you are willing men should come in who will build them."

The above, though not all that was said, gives the substance and spirit of the conversation. I [illegible] much more plainly than any statement I have seen precisely where the President elect now [illegible] with reference to the South.

This conversation shows that whatever he may [illegible] he now stands by his past record. He [illegible] that a citizen of the United States shall be recognized as such and secured and protected in his rights and privileges in every State; that the [illegible] of the freedmen shall be recognized and obligations shall not be increased, and that [illegible] of the late war at the South shall [illegible] the Government in repairing the [illegible] caused by the war.

[illegible] interview was a strong conviction that Grant is a Radical in the most radical [illegible] of the political term; that all parties North and South would do wisely to recognize the fact [illegible] accordingly. That he will follow the [illegible] and abandon the party that [illegible] him and to any extent identify himself [illegible] opponents in the war [illegible] the character of the man and [illegible] present [illegible] clearly expressed [illegible]

Grant's manner is that of a quiet man, perfect [illegible] He expresses himself as in short sentences [illegible] low tone of voice. Although there is a remarkable quietness in his manner there is at the same time a marked positiveness of utterance [illegible] that no fears [illegible] there is very [illegible] in replying to any adverse [illegible] Though there was nothing approaching [illegible] yet there was that [illegible] that left them neither heart nor [illegible] plead their cause further. It was clearly evident that what they said after that was in defense [illegible] rather than with the hope of making [illegible] impression on their auditor.

[illegible] Grant as I saw him. He is unchanged [illegible] positive and determined as ever. What [illegible] of battle he may fix upon [illegible] may de[illegible] [illegible] he will still fight it out on that line.

[illegible] called the poor man's paradise by a correspondent. He says a $500 house there is as good as a $2,500 one at the North. No woodpile, no haymow to provide, and fifty cents an acre.

The Richmond Whig, after appealing to Congress and the Northern people to do all in their power to promote the restoration of good feeling between the North and the South, says: "We have good reasons to know that influences are at work in our highest Virginia circles looking to this end. The best intellects and the purest characters of this State are now seriously devoting themselves to the preparation and organization of measures designed to end strife and to satisfy all rational demands that can be made upon us. It may be that there are a few among us who prefer strife to peace, the sword to the plowshare, decay to prosperity, universal ruin to universal well being. If such there be, they will be harmless when all who hold different views shall place themselves before the country in solid array."

A., introduced a plan to connect the head waters of the upper Mississippi, Illinois and Ohio rivers with the waters of Lakes Superior, Michigan and Erie, and leveling the Mississippi from Cairo to its mouth.

INTERNAL DOMINIONS IN ABYSSINIA.—Abyssinia is subjected to another [illegible] of internal struggles. Since the close of the English expedition a new order of things has sprung up. One of the three great provinces of Abyssinia, Amhard, under the absolute sovereignty of Gobazie, has taken advantage of the English expedition to establish claims that were frustrated and rigorously punished by Theodorus. The stronghold of Magdala, has been occupied by Wreldist, one of the queens of the Wollo Gallas, a Mahometan tribe. The escarpments of this fortress being natural they could not be destroyed. Immediately after the city was taken possession of by Mesdist, a rival, in the person of [illegible] Workit, set up claims in which she was supported by the King of Choa. Workit is one of the two queens ruling over the Wollo Gallas in the name of their sons, who are cousins. The frontier of the Wollo Gallas tribe is Bechalo.

Gobazie has rebuilt Gondar and proclaimed himself emperor under the name of Hazis, Tecla Giorghis. He recently sent several horses and a letter to the King of Tigris. The acceptance of these by the latter according to the diplomacy of the country will be an acknowledgment to submission to the power of the new emperor. Gobazie has a powerful army, accustomed to fighting, and devoted to their leader. He has a large supply of cannon, small arms and ammunition.

The country to the north of Bechalo, under Tapis Ali, the maternal uncle of Gobazie, is subjected to civil war brought about by the claims of various chiefs. Several chiefs are in revolt against Gobazie, who thus far has failed to suppress the insurgents. Although his power is secure in the whole of central Abyssinia, in the southeast and northwest he is met by the most stubborn resistance. In the latter provinces the rebels have taken to the business of wholesale robbery.

ANNEKE JANS AND HER IMMORTAL HEIRS.—As has been duly announced, the heirs of this renowned deceased have had another conclave for the assertion of their rights. At this time New Jersey was selected as the place of meeting, and doubtless for the reason that this State has so often of late been happily chosen as the place of refuge for those who have become involved in the toils of law. The meeting was entitled "a general convention of the heirs." As such it was conducted according to all the forms that govern such great bodies. Presidents, Vices and Secretaries without number were appointed. Credentials of delegates were exacted. The proceedings were opened with prayer. Committees were created and resolutions adopted [illegible] in size to [illegible] a national political convention.

The committee appointed to push the matter through the courts consisted of twenty, those of our State being Messrs. Isaac B[illegible], G. F. [illegible] and G. W. Lord, the latter being associate legal counsel. The Convention determined that this committee shall in the event of success, have ten per cent of the amount collected, but if beaten shall pay their own cost, in which respect the body followed the illustrious example set forth in the case of Bardell vs. Pickwick, as was proven by the veracious testimony of Mr. Samuel Weller, Jr. So that now we may expect to see an active campaign in which the gracious memory of Anneke Jans shall be duly honored, even if the title to her lands shall not be made good to her lawful heirs.—N. Y. Paper.

If any important lobbyist or other schemer for public plunder is still in doubt as to the sort of [illegible] is likely to receive at the hands of the next Administration he may obtain some information from the following from a late editorial of the Cincinnati [illegible]:

Grant during his late trip from Chicago to this city remarked to a gentleman in company that he feared the "carpet baggers" would swamp the Government before he could take possession of the White House. By carpet baggers he meant the large aggregation of individuals now at Washington with their pockets full of schemes, the object of which is to deplete the Treasury. The General spoke very freely on this subject. He did not [illegible] the business as [illegible] or brokers as public robbers. "I am [illegible]," said Grant, "of directly or indirectly increasing the public debt while there is a party in the country that talks about repudiation. Furthermore it is absolutely necessary that we should have the strictest honesty in the collection of the revenue and the strictest economy in all expenditures."

The Fishkill N. Y. Standard is hunting up the oldest inhabitants. In the course of its researches it has come across one of the soldiers of Napoleon Bonaparte. This old gentleman, who lives at Fishkill Landing, is eighty five years of age and still hale and hearty. He participated in the battles of Ulm, Jena, Austerlitz, Vienna, and the struggles of the Peninsula War. He has been in this country since 1828 and for the most of the time has resided at Fishkill Landing.

Horace Greeley

"I was from my birth a feeble sickly child, often under medical treatment and unable to watch through a closed window, the falling of rain without incurring an instant and violent attack of illness."

So writes an autobiographer at the age of fifty-seven, describing a life marked in every stage by extreme exactions of mental and physical effort attended by a total disregard of the natural or customary hours and labor. The night "in which no man can work" never came to him. A curious train of thought is excited by the question what manner of Horace Greeley would have been produced by the nursing and coddling then and to some extent now supposed to be the only treatment proper to follow such an infancy as his? The fact that it was followed by a childhood and youth of severe labor, great exposure, and if not of great privations certainly destitute of all small comforts, and that by a manhood unusually laborious and [illegible], and that the subject of all this seemingly unfavorable discipline enters on mature age with one of the soundest of minds in one of the soundest of bodies, ought to save any [illegible] from despair because his child is feeble and himself straitened in means.

Review of a Reviewer

At last [illegible] it appears the [illegible] the Chinese [illegible] again. This [illegible] manifest great [illegible] tagonists. Believing that they have found a race that they [illegible] superior to, they are fighting with all their energy to maintain that superiority. From the earnestness they manifest one would suppose that they regard their success as quite problematical and feel that it is necessary to strain every nerve to win.

Chapman's last effort is an article of two columns, which he says is the first article of a series of three designed as a review of the Governor's objections to the China bill. This article is written to prove that the bill to lay a special tax on the Chinese is not in conflict with the Constitution of Oregon. The Governor cited the constitutional provision that "all taxation shall be equal and uniform." But his reviewer says that "this objection can be maintained only upon the theory that the framers of the Constitution intended to place Chinamen in all respects upon a par with the white man. Now the framers of the Constitution did not intend to place Chinamen in all respects upon a par with the white man for they denied Chinamen certain rights as that of suffrage, which it was entirely proper for them to do, but they had no power to frame a Constitution which would burden Chinese or any other class of foreigners with unequal taxes, which would prohibit their introduction here, or which would in any other way infringe upon the power of Congress to make treaties, regulate commerce, or establish intercourse with foreign nations. That Chinese in this State may be taxed as other residents is not disputed, but that they may be set apart as special subjects of taxation and compelled to contribute to the revenue of the State in their character as foreigners, is a proposition directly at variance with the settled law of the nation. With or without this clause in our State Constitution requiring all taxation to be equal and uniform, this proposition could not be maintained. For it is in contravention of the powers of the National Government, as affirmed by our highest judicial tribunal, being in its nature a regulation of commerce and a tax upon foreign intercourse, and therefore unconstitutional and void. Congress has a right to tax persons who may come into the United States as a regulation of commerce and an establishment of the terms and conditions of intercourse with any foreign nation, but the States have not this power. No principle of our jurisprudence is more firmly settled than this. But Col Chapman though professing to be a lawyer, clearly does not know it.

This clause of our State Constitution is valid, and [illegible] to all the residents of the State, the Chinese included, because the people of Oregon had no right or power to frame a Constitution which would impose special taxes on that class of persons. And if the reviewer of Gov Woods' veto had any knowledge of the subject he is essaying to discuss, he would be satisfied with the elucidation which this whole matter has received in the Supreme Court of the United States.

A study of the celebrated Passenger Cases in 7th Howard, to which Gov Woods has alluded in his veto, would have shown his reviewer, provided he has judgment enough to comprehend the principles there laid down, that it does not lie in the discretion of a State of this Union to determine what persons may come to, and reside in it. He would have learned, as Justice McLean observed in the case alluded to, that "except to guard its citizens against diseases and paupers, the municipal power of a State cannot prohibit the introduction of foreigners," and that as Justice Wayne declared, "a State has not the right to tax a foreigner or person, for coming into one of the States of the United States. That would be a tax or revenue act, in the nature of a regulation of commerce." By studying adjudicated cases he would have learned that intercourse of persons is a part of commerce, and the power to regulate commerce includes the power to regulate intercourse. If this State has the power to impose a special tax on Chinese, that power is unlimited, and may be carried to the extent of preventing all trade and intercourse with China. Congress, in the exercise of its supreme constitutional power over this subject, has established trade with that country. Treaties to this effect were negotiated by President Buchanan and ratified by a Democratic Senate. No State can interfere with the subject, because no State can lay an embargo on trade or intercourse and defeat the commercial power of the nation. The clause of the Constitution of Oregon which provides that all taxation shall be equal and uniform includes every class of foreigners, for had it been so framed as to discriminate against any, it would have been in contravention of the supreme law of the land and therefore void.

The Governor's reviewer also relies upon the following clause of the Constitution of Oregon.

> And the Legislative Assembly shall have power to restrain and regulate the immigration to this State of persons not qualified to become citizens of the United States.

He remarks: "Whatever therefore may be necessary to the execution of the power either to restrain or regulate the immigration of persons not qualified to become citizens of the United States is constitutional for the Legislature to do. And as Chinamen are not qualified to become citizens of the United States, their immigration may be restrained and regulated." If the Constitution of Oregon were the supreme law of the land, a strong argument might be framed upon this clause in favor of the validity of Chapman's Chinese tax bill, but our State Constitution, when it conflicts with the Constitution of the United States is not supreme. Therefore on the principles we have already cited it is clear that this clause of our Constitution is invalid. It assumes to give our Legislature power over a subject which it belongs to Congress by express provision of the National Constitution to regulate. The Governor's reviewer may not be able to comprehend these principles but if he ever succeeds in getting his bill enacted into a law the Courts will re-affirm the settled policy of the nation on the subject in such a way as to convince him that his law is a failure even if he cannot comprehend the reasoning by which the result is arrived at.

In his veto message the Governor made the following point which his reviewer is at great pains to refute:

> The Act in question is a direct violation of this section of the Constitution. It provides that "No Chinaman, for hire or wages shall labor or be employed or work in any gold, silver, copper, or other mine within this State without first paying a tax of ten dollars in United States gold coin," etc. That is to say any Chinaman may violate a plain provision of the Constitution for the sum of ten dollars.

We do not intend to consider this point, for in our opinion it has little or no relevancy to the subject. We think it is a mere quibble which added little to the Governor's argument. He cited authorities enough, without this subtlety to settle the whole question, and he who will take the trouble to examine the authorities cited will find them absolutely unanswerable. The subject has other aspects which we will now consider. We will wait to see how Chapman gets on with his proposition to prove that his tax bill was not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States nor a breach of our treaty stipulations with China. He will have up-hill work of it with these propositions, unless he employs partisan declamation and dogmatic assertion instead of consulting the established authorities. This no doubt will be his course. It was the course his party pursued with regard to the taxation of United States bonds until its ignorant mouthing was stopped by an irresistible weight of proofs drawn from the highest authority in the nation.

> The negroes were held as slaves in a large portion of our country and were owned by men who speculated in their labor, and therefore had systematized their operations so that in no case would, or even has, the labor of the slave come in competition with white labor, and the white laborer was not looked upon as the lowest class in society.—Commercial.

The logic of this sentence can be equalled only by its syntax. Gross as the outrage is which the writer has perpetrated on English grammar, he has committed an equal outrage on common sense. The idea that the labor of the negro, while he is a slave cannot compete with the labor of the white man but that the moment the negro becomes free this competition is established, is not a degree above absolute idiocy. It is also charming to observe that this sheet, which has been setting itself up as a champion of labor, is of opinion that white laborers have by the abolition of slavery, become "the lowest class in society."

Conceding Everything.—The Democratic papers are still harping on the employment of Chinese labor in the Oregon City factory, but as a general thing they scatter so much that they give nothing for us to reply to. The Commercial however in the following sentences admits the whole case against itself and the Herald:

> The OREGONIAN says "that any Democrat would like Chinamen." Since Mr OREGONIAN we do not deny that Democrats would like Chinamen, or any other men, if they could get them cheap. * * * Any one has a right to hire a Chinaman or a negro for what he can get him for, and he also has a right to discharge any one whom he has previously employed.

This closes the whole case. It concedes everything we have urged in the whole matter.

Interesting Publication.—The San Francisco Dramatic Review contains the following cheerful item: It is rumored that to supply a public want a new daily paper will shortly be started in this city, to be called the Small Pox Times and Vaccination Herald. This will relieve the regular dailies of their present over plus of small pox matter.

The Confessions of Arnold and Atzeroth.

NEW YORK, Jan 19.—The confessions of Arnold and Atzeroth, two of the parties in the conspiracy to murder President Lincoln, are now published. At the time of the confession Arnold made a voluntary statement in Baltimore, April 18 '65, in the [illegible] Marshal McPhail; that of Atzeroth was made in his cell at Washington on the night before his execution.

Wisconsin Senator

MADISON, Wis, Jan [illegible] Carpenter was nominated for United States Senator on the sixth ballot.

Postmaster for Portland—Washington News

WASHINGTON, Jan 19.—The Senate in Executive session confirmed the nomination of L H Wakefield as Postmaster at Portland, Oregon.

They then considered for a short time, the treaties with Great Britain. The treaties were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered printed. Objections were interposed to take final action at this time, because some portions of them were prepared from telegrams and it was deemed best to wait till copies are received by steamer.

NEW YORK, Jan 20.—The tenor of the Washington dispatches is that there will be strong opposition to the Alabama Constitution in the Committee, and that it stands no chance to be ratified in its present form.

From Cuba.

HAVANA, Jan 20.—A meeting of leading Liberal Republicans was held yesterday, at which it was resolved unanimously that Cubans will insist on autonomy and stand by the independence guaranteed by Spain with guarantees necessary to insure its permanency. These would solve the difficulties and evils which afflict the country. This resolution is regarded as the declaration of the political liberty of the Liberal party. The Verdad, a Liberal paper, in a reviewing article on the subject, says if the Cuban party insists on continuing the fight against Spain it must be with the object of throwing the island into the arms of the United States, or of framing a Republic separate from Spain. This renders it necessary that the Spaniards reduce them to loyalty by force of arms. But should the Spaniards be attacked by foreigners and perhaps compelled by superior force to leave the island, they should leave it in ruin.

HAVANA, Jan 20.—A letter from one of the Peace Commission, says the insurrectionary General, Cespedo, was shot. His army was in the mountains. The Revolutionist, Gen Querado, at last accounts, was at Manaja organizing his forces. An unconfirmed report from revolutionist sources announces an outbreak in the Central Department.

Advices from Hayti state that the Revolutionists appear to be gaining ground everywhere in that island.

The Revolution in Cuba

NEW YORK, Jan 21.—A Washington dispatch says that several wealthy revolutionary Cubans have arrived there who make representations to the State Department upon the condition of the island. They affirm there are from 12,000 to 15,000 troops in the insurgent force, well armed and organized, and that any number of Cubans can be raised as soon as arms sufficient shall be landed upon the island. They require no men from the United States. They say, we have men enough, all we want is arms and ammunition. They seek recognition as belligerents. Many in Congress favor this.

Loss of the Gulf City.

NEW YORK, Jan 21.—Full particulars of the wreck of the Gulf City, off the North Carolina coast, show that twenty one sailors and one passenger were lost. The sufferings among those who were saved were intense. Eight persons took to a raft, but during the forty eight hours of hunger and thirst, five of them fell into the sea and were drowned. The remainder were finally picked up and saved.

War Ships for Greece

NEW YORK, Jan 21.—It is stated that negotiations are pending between several ship builders and agents of Greece for building war vessels. It is stated that Greece does not think of abiding by the decision of the Conference.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Jan 20.—The Senate took up Morton's bill to prohibit the collection by States of capitation taxes from railway passengers. Morton moved to refer it to the Judiciary Committee. Frelinghuysen wished to be heard before the reference of the bill in defense of the interests of his State.

Senate resumed the consideration of the bill to promote commerce among the States, being Sherman's railroad bill. Williams gave notice that he would offer a substitute for the constitutional amendment in regard to suffrage reported by the Judiciary Committee, giving Congress the power to abrogate any restrictions on the right to vote or hold office prescribed by the Constitution or laws of any State.

Mr Sherman, from the Finance Committee reported a bill to amend the national currency act which makes several changes. It provides the manner in which banks shall go into liquidation and for the payment of Receivers. It requires all banks selected as depositories to deposit bonds as security for such deposits. Whenever the money so deposited exceeds ninety per cent the Treasurer is required to reduce the amount to ninety per cent. It imposes a severe penalty on any officer for obtaining deposits. No bank shall make any loan on U S Notes or on the circulation of banker's collateral to loans. All contracts made upon such collateral are to be void.

The amendments reported by the committee to Sherman's railroad bill were read. Mr Vickers made a lengthy speech against the bill. An amendment was offered and adopted providing that the Baltimore and Potomac road may be adopted as a portion of the line between Washington and Baltimore on satisfactory terms. Mr Sherman moved to strike out the sections relating to the Cleveland and Cincinnati roads, so as to make the bill provide for a road between New York and Washington. Agreed to.

Mr Wiley moved to amend by providing for a road from Washington to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad near Staunton Virginia. He said this road is only one hundred miles long and would open a direct railway communication with the valley of the Mississippi. Sherman preferred that the bill should simply provide for a road to New York. [illegible] said they already had a good road to New York. There was a very great need for a new railroad from Washington to the West. He regarded Wiley's amendment as more important than the bill itself. Wiley finally withdrew the amendment.

Howard introduced a supplemental bill granting lands to aid in the construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad. It provides for a guarantee by the Government of payment of the interest on the company's bonds to the extent of forty thousand dollars in bonds per mile. It is secured by the retention of sums due for Government transportation and receipts of two per cent of the road's gross earnings.

In the House a bill was passed after some debate directing the Secretary of the Navy to appoint midshipmen to the naval academy by the 4th of March next from any State in which the election of Congressmen will not occur before the 4th of July, on the nomination of the member of the House of the preceding Congress, providing that no appointment shall be made from States not entitled to representation.

Shelabarger introduced a bill to regulate the manner of applying to Congress for the removal of political disability. Referred to Committee on Reconstruction.

Mr Cook from the Committee on Elections called up the resolutions hitherto reported that Anderson is not entitled to a seat from the 5th Missouri district but that Switzler is. Mr Cook made a speech in support of the resolutions. A discussion ensued terminating by the rejection of the resolutions reported by the committee by a vote 50 to 89. So Anderson is confirmed in his seat.

New York Items

NEW YORK, Jan 22.—It has been stated that John C Braine of the rebel navy, was to be released under the President's amnesty proclamation but no instructions have been received from Washington on the subject.

Eight fire companies in Brooklyn representing an aggregate of 270 volunteer firemen were disbanded Wednesday for disorderly conduct and fighting.

The steamer [illegible] from Aspinwall has arrived.

The Herald's Washington special says that a petition is being circulated in the House asking the House not to confirm any more of Johnson's [illegible] whether of Republican or Democrats, and that it has already received the signatures of nearly all the Republican members of the House. It is rumored that this movement has the sanction of Gen Grant.

Indian Affairs.

CHICAGO, Jan 21.—The Republican's special says the Senate Indian committee yesterday had under consideration the question of the transfer of the Indian Bureau from the Interior Department with the view to make it a separate department. They finally agreed to report a bill making it a separate Bureau like the Agricultural Department. They further agreed that there shall be two general superintendents, one on the Pacific and one on the Atlantic slope, having charge of all Indian agents. They further agreed that whenever any tribe is at war with the Government, they shall be turned over to the War Department until [illegible] the military authorities [illegible] given back to the Indian Bureau.

Gen Grant has written a letter to the committee of management of the unofficial inauguration ceremonies begging that the inaugural ball be dispensed with.

The National Woman's Rights Convention has adjourned having adopted resolutions demanding that women and colored men be eligible to Congress, and that women have equal pay for labor with men; that suffrage be based on loyalty and intelligence. An address is to be issued to the country.

BALTIMORE, Jan 22.—The second regular annual meeting of the trustees of the Peabody Southern Educational Fund was held to day. From the report of the general agent the cause of education in the South is rapidly advancing.

OTTAWA, C W, Jan 21.—Desbarrat's block in which were situated Young's printing office, the Royal Canadian Bank and Walters hotel, were destroyed by fire this morning. Loss quarter of a million.

Rank ad Item—While some men are tracks to bear the burdens of the earth or furnace grates to bear the fires and to be consumed in obscurity, there are driving wheels which give life and motion to all with whom they are connected. Kohn & Fishel the leading Dry Goods merchants of Portland, are the driving wheels of trade in that city. They conceived and carried on to completion a work nobler than the Pyramids, grander than the gardens of [illegible] the walls of Babylon [illegible] a monument for the dead, neither the gratification of a luxuriant fancy, but it is a new pathway for purchasers, a link to bind the chain of families and the hearts of men.

PRESENTATION.—We had the pleasure yesterday afternoon, of witnessing a presentation to Capt J H Couch and a few friends, being assembled at Schreder's, Mr Bailey, on behalf of Capt Freeman of the bark Almy ... Capt Couch saying he had been deputed to perform the agreeable service of presenting him a token of the respect and admiration of an old friend. Bailey then placed before the recipient a small black case. Capt Couch, thinking it was some of the practical jokers who abound along the wharves at the North End, ... suspected a sell and requested Mr Bailey to open the case which being done, it was found to contain an elaborately gotten up tin watch with a brandy thermometer about half a yard long and an immense seal. All the friends laughed and called for a speech from the Captain who sat confused and blushing like a new blown rose. Having examined the present for a moment and read the inscription, "To J H C from friends J F & C," the Captain arose and delivered the following neat, appropriate and eloquent remarks: "Gentlemen—I—I am not accustomed ... you'd scarce expect one of my age (applause)—that is, I'm not accustomed to public speaking (cries of go on)—now I say (renewed applause)—I ... BY ATLANTIC CABLE

PARIS, Jan 20.—Later reports from Rio Janeiro confirm the previous reports of the capture of Villetta and the destruction of the Paraguayan army.

MADRID, Jan 20.—The new Cortez meet on the 11th of February.

LONDON, Jan 20.—Particulars of the recent earthquake in the Bengal ... report the loss of life very great.

The journals this morning concur in praising the speech of Napier at the opening of the Chambers as a frank and trustworthy expression of his policy in the words of a true Frenchman and addressed to Frenchmen. The Times is sorry the fabric he has raised is based on personal government and can't survive its maker.

The Independence Belge says the protocol adopted by the conference begins with a preamble, stating that the representatives of the Powers who signed the treaty of Paris have met to define certain points of international law more precisely. The document proceeds to declare that to encourage insurrections within or privateering or military expeditions against the Territories of a friendly State is a violation of international law. When the protocol shall have been signed by all the Powers participating in the conference, it will be offered to Greece for her signature. If Greece signs the Sublime Porte will withdraw its ultimatum. If she refuses the great Powers will remain neutral and let events take their course.

The mail from Rio Janeiro received at London contains no news of the victory of the Allies at Villetta.

PARIS, Jan 21.—Mr Burlingame and two chief Mandarins of the Chinese Embassy had a highly satisfactory interview with the Minister of Foreign Affairs, yesterday. They will have an audience with the Emperor on Sunday next, at the Tuileries.

It is officially stated that the Conference awaits the reply of the Greek Government to the resolution which has been adopted, when it will dissolve.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan 21.—It is rumored here that the Greek ship ... fired into a French sloop and that several ... on board the latter were killed.

LONDON, Jan 21.—A vessel which left Madeira on the 14th reports that nothing has been heard of the 39 passengers on the steamer Hibernia, reported to have been picked up. It is doubtful whether they were saved.

Advices from New Zealand report a frightful massacre of whites by natives of Poverty Bay.

Diminution of Marriages.

Statistics and observation establish the fact that in the Atlantic States there is an alarming diminution of marriages in proportion to the increase of population. The standards set up by our forefathers, when every man felt it a duty to establish himself in a home, and contract those influences which customarily attach to and ornament the family circle, have been widely departed from. Religion, morals, and all the virtues must suffer by this tendency. Society would not have a figment of strength to support it if all the young men and ladies should resolve upon celibacy. It is unnecessary to prove the fact that the family circle is the source as well as the protector of all the affections. The young man who lives upon the street, who loafs at the club, who finds all his enjoyment in actual estrangement from scenes which cluster the refining and elevating principles of his nature, may not be on the road to actual ruin, but he has already reached the goal of a cold selfishness, of a hardened indifference, of a monkish asceticism which is foreign to generosity, intelligence, urbanity, and social existence.

This tendency to celibacy is the result of false reasoning indulged in by young men. We will not be ungracious enough to deny them the possessions of refined social feelings, chaste affections, or any of the qualities that temper man's asperities and make him fit to preside at the holy communion of the hearthstone. No, no, we will not suppose him a beast, for then to reason were impossible. But he reasons wrongly. He says, "I am not ready to get married." Mark that man! he never will be. Few, the very fewest, ever direct their energies to preparing for such an event. A man cannot adapt himself to the circumstances of the married state so long as he remains single. He needs to feel the marriage halter drawn before he addresses himself to the changed mode of life, before he begins to love in earnest, before he begins to stay at home of nights, before he begins to economize. Before marriage he is a great hulk, utterly at sea, without anchor, a helpless prey to every adverse wind and every buffeting wave. Afterwards he is a noble ship securely moored and able to laugh at storms and tides. California, the States of the Pacific, and all the Territories are standing for marriageable ladies. The want of families and the absence of society are to him a curse. A thousand marriage ceremonies would do more to elevate the morals of such communities than a thousand sermons. They would be more than church, or preacher, or homily. They would be law and order, and safety, and wealth, and health, besides. The marriage tie has so proved, at all times and among all nations.

STAY ON THE FARM.—The cities and villages are already over crowded, and every kind of business languishes more than the cultivation of the earth. In the cities the labor market is overstocked, and one can get any desired number of hands for any conceivable job. Clerks from the country have to serve two or three years before they can get living wages. The city throngs with unemployed men and women waiting for something to turn up. Those who find employment have no security for permanence. Mechanics lose their places and have to be idle for weeks and months together. All the products of skill and labor are relatively cheaper than provisions and breadstuffs. The great material want of the nation is cheaper meats, grain and vegetables. We have merchants, mechanics and middlemen enough, but far too few farmers. The best cultivated State abounds in uncultivated lands. Even in the vicinity of our large towns and cities cheap lands abound, and splendid chances for an enterprising young man to win homes and fortune. Once settled upon his own acres, the farmer has a constant, profitable occupation before him. Nowhere is unskilled labor so sure of sustenance, nowhere will intelligent industry so surely win a happy home and competence. In the country one never need to look long ... labor brings there the necessaries and comforts of life.—... Agriculturist.

In Robert Bonner's stable the horses are fed from a box in the floor, as their owner believes that nature intended they should take their food from the level of their feet.

WOLFE'S

CELEBRATED

SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS.

TO THE CITIZENS OF OREGON

I BEG LEAVE TO CALL THE ATTENTION OF THE citizens of Oregon to my celebrated AROMATIC SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS, a medicinal Diet Drink of eminently salutary qualities manufactured by myself exclusively at my factory at Schiedam, in Holland.

In ... Gout ... obstructions of the Bladder and kidneys its effects are prompt, decided and invariably reliable.

It is now some twenty years since the Proprietor first introduced it to the American public, and during that time it has received over 3,000 letters from physicians confirming it as the purest ... they have ever used in their practice.

It is made from barley of the finest quality, selected with great care from the products of the most celebrated growing districts, is flavored with the essence of the aromatic juniper berry of Italy, and is rectified by a peculiar process which expels from the spirit every acrid particle.

As a means of preventing and correcting ... disagreeable and after dangerous effects produced ... and be wrought by a change of water ... visitant ... to which travelers, new settlers and all unacclimated persons are peculiarly liable—the

SCHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS

Will be found absolutely infallible, while, in cases of dropsy, gravel, ... of the kidneys, diseases of the bladder, ... dyspepsia and general debility, it is recommended emphatically by the most distinguished members of the medical profession.

It is put up in quart and pint bottles, in cases with the name of the undersigned on the bottle and cork, and a fac simile of his signature on the label. For sale by all respectable druggists and country merchants.

Are you WEAK, DEBILITATED, NERVOUS? Is your sleep disturbed? Do you have palpitation of the heart ... an inclination to melancholy? Diseases of such nature require a prompt DIURETIC, which will be found in Wolfe's Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps.

Wolfe's Schiedam Schnapps

Is sold by all Grocers and Apothecaries.

Wolfe's Schiedam Schnapps
